History

The Edmond Land Conservancy (ELC) was born out of Edmond's Green Cities Task Force, a city commission created to review and provide recommendations to the City Council regarding parks, trails and open space vision. The establishment of a separate, private, non-profit organization was desperately needed to ensure the successful implementation of the Greenprint document, which outlined a vision for Edmond's future. The newly formed Edmond Land Conservancy will serve as an alternative to the City for the acquisition and maintenance of scenic and recreational green space in Edmond.

About ELC

The Edmond Land Conservancy provides the community a vehicle for participating in the creation, preservation and improvement of Edmond's green space and works with property and landowners who wish to donate conservation easements (permanent deed restrictions that prevent harmful land uses). As a 501 (c)(3) incorporated organization, ELC is among the nation's 1,300-plus nonprofit land trust organizations that operate independently of government. As a member of the national Land Trust Alliance (LTA), the Edmond Land Conservancy adheres to established guidelines for the responsible operation of a land trust organization, which is run legally, ethically, and in the public interest and conducts a sound program of land transactions and stewardship.

Objectives

- Implementing the Edmond Greenprint
- Identifying and pursuing opportunities to acquire rights in property through conservation easements, acquisitions or donations
- Helping to preserve Edmond's natural, cultural, and scenic resources – water, forests, open space, farmland, floodplains, and historic sites
- Enhancing outdoor recreation opportunities through assisting in trails, parks and facilities projects
- Assist in attracting new environmentally sensitive industry and development
